Tim Schmidt : Central Glass Works: The Depression Era (Schiffer Book for Collectors with Price Guide)

before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Central Glass Works: The Depression Era (Schiffer Book for Collectors with Price Guide):

1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Central Glass Works: the Depression EraBy G. ShepThis is a good book for Central Glass Compan's patterns. However, not all of the pictures of the etched pieces are the best. Drawings are used with some of the patterns, which helps. But etch patterns from the just pictures is hard to see clearly.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Central Glass Works: The Depression EraBy susie keenalots of information both photos and descriptions but not complete. have a few pieces that are not in this book but know they are from central glass works.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Central Glass Works:By Gale ParrishVery good book, able to find the pieces of glass I am looking for. I would recommend this book to others

The beautiful and varied glassware lines produced by the Central Glass Works of Wheeling, West Virginia, from the 1910s through 1939, are presented in 470 eye-catching images. Distributed throughout the United States, Continental Europe, and Australia, they include the company's depression era stemware and tumblers, compotes, marmalades, covered candy dishes, dresser and vanity trays, pitchers, tankards, jugs, candlesticks, and barware in a striking variety of colors and forms. Close attention is paid to the many etched patterns Central Glass Works produced. The text provides an informative history of the company, descriptions of the product lines, colors, and etched patterns. Values are found both in the captions and in tables spread throughout the text. This book is an essential reference for all who appreciate glassware produced during the early twentieth century.

About the Author Tim Schmidt has been collecting depression era glassware since 1989 and has been researching the glassware produced by Central Glass Works almost as long.
