Highly recommended. 3 of 6 people found the following review helpful. Magical! By Customer I adore this book. For anyone who can still get caught up in the magic of childhood, this book is a treat. It is a pleasure to read and the pictures are beautiful. I have a lot of craft books, but this one I actually read from cover to cover, and savored it. I can't wait to get started on some of the projects. The book isn't just about individual projects, but inspiration for creating personalized heirlooms for children that we love and adding to their world that is already full of wonder. 3 of 6 people found the following review helpful. Childhood Treasures By Janice Nelson I love photos and picture books. It took me back to childhood days and the sweetness of youth and innocence. Not a masterpiece, but so enjoyable.

"Childhood Treasures" by Caroline Zoob is packed with ideas for gifts to make for children of all ages - exquisite handcrafted items that they will treasure forever. There are suggestions for decorating a nursery, marking the arrival of a new baby with a stitched sampler and creating simple stuffed toys. You needn't be an expert with the needle - many of the ideas involve customizing bought treasures with the simplest techniques. At the heart of the book are ten step-by-step projects, from an appliqued cot quilt to an adorable stuffed rabbit. *A treasure trove of enchanting gifts and keepsakes, with captivating photography by Caroline Arber - now available in paperback.

Country Living, Homes and Gardens, BBC Parenting, You magazine (the Mail on Sunday). About the Author Caroline Arber began her career as a fashion photographer. After having children of her own, she began photographing children, working on projects for Portfolio and Athena International. She now works mainly as an interiors photographer for magazines including Red, Homes Gardens, and Country Living.
