

(Free read ebook) Time to Create: Hands-On Explorations in Process Art for Young Children

Time to Create: Hands-On Explorations in Process Art for Young Children

Christie Burnett

DOC | *audiobook | ebooks | Download PDF | ePub

#568616 in Books GRYPHON HOUSE 2013-06-01 Original language: English PDF # 1 10.99 x .32 x 8.101, .95 #File Name: 0876594186128 pages Sold As 1 EA. | File size: 38.Mb

Christie Burnett : Time to Create: Hands-On Explorations in Process Art for Young Children before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Time to Create: Hands-On Explorations in Process Art for Young Children:

3 of 5 people found the following review helpful. A great art resource for teachers
By Nadine Lada My staff was wed to product art, also known as "cookie-cutter" art because every child makes the same project. This book is a wonderful explanation of process art and its relationship to true creativity. Teachers have already begun switching over to teaching how-to instead of what-to. Real illustrations of real children, well-formatted, the theory not overly print-dense--worth every penny.
0 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Five Stars
By carlita arila Love it!
1 of 3 people found the following review helpful. Fun
By Customer I love this book. I am a teacher of four and five year olds and I use this book often.

Winner of the 2014 Mom's Best Award and a 2014 National Parenting Publication's Award! Positive creative and artistic experiences provide for a child's learning and development, and the most effective engagement goes well beyond learning the names of colors or how to hold a pencil to draw. Time to Create offers easy, accessible art activity ideas for families and educators to explore with their young children. Each activity encourages discovery through a variety of art media, including drawing, painting, printmaking, and textiles, and places an emphasis on process over product. With ideas for fostering creativity, advice for choosing the right art project, and suggestions for minimizing the mess, this handbook is helpful for teachers as well as parents.

This book covers so many different mediums of art and gives tons of fun activity ideas. Not only is it good for parents, but teachers, scout leaders, daycare workers anyone looking for unique craft activities to do with children. --Mom's

Best Awards Judge I like all of the tips that are included in this book. Displaying and storing artwork, organizing art materials, encouraging children to be creative. This is a valuable resource in teaching your kids to love and appreciate different forms of art. --Mom's Best Awards Judge I enjoyed learning how to use regular, household items such as eyedroppers and shaving cream, to create fun pieces of artwork. Great ideas! --Mom's Best Awards Judge From the Back Cover Forget stuffy, structured craft activities; your child needs time to create! Rather than merely teaching your child to name colors and to hold a pencil, the hands-on process art experiences in Time to Create encourage discovery through a variety of art media, including drawing, painting, print making, collage, and sculpture. With ideas for encouraging creativity, advice for choosing the right art project, and suggestions for minimizing the mess, you and your child will be on your way to fun-to-do art explorations in no time! Christie Burnett is the writer and founder of the popular Australian parenting blog Childhood 101. She has worked as an early childhood educator for many years and is the mother of two young girls. About the Author Christie Burnett is an experienced early childhood teacher and the founder and editor of Childhood 101, a blog about parenting, art, creativity, family, and child care topics.